Pleasanton Elementary, Amador High districts

School tax vote seen in '76

The Amador-Pleasanton School District is headed for a tax revenue increase election late in 1976 unless the State Legislature comes forth with sufficient "corrective legislation" in the next session.

This is the opinion ventured by Dr. Bruce C. Newlin, superintendent of Amador-Pleasanton schools, following a "state of the district" discussion Wednesday. Newlin is completing his first year with the district, having been appointed late last summer to fill the vacancy left by Rudy Gatti.

Newlin said the Amador and Pleasanton boards would have to consider such measures unless, 1) a change can be implemented in the current financial structure to meet the Serrano-Priest rationale, or 2) a viable solution is found to deal with the unrealistic inflation factor. "We ended up with only 5 1/2 per cent more money," Newlin stated, "even though the inflation factor was at 12 per cent."

As a further explanation to the inflation burt in the sides of school districts, Newlin commented that "the state said about four years ago school districts would pay more into the State Employees Retirement System with an eight-tenths of one per cent increase each year thereafter. Yet, Sacramento didn't give us any way to recoup this. It's built into the law."

He added that Pleasanton and Amador are fortunate that they don't have the additional problem of declining enrollment.

Noting the plight of the Hayward schools, Newlin said that a 10 per cent reduction in students doesn't automatically give you a 10 per cent reduction in budget.

Newlin labels both the Pleasanton and Amador budgets for 1975-76 as "austere."

"When you have 85 per cent of a budget locked into salaries and benefits, you don't have too much room to move around in."

Asked if the role of legal counsel (to the school boards) Keith Breen was that of cutting edge to keep salary and benefit proposals under control, Newlin replied that Breen's presence was in no way that of a hatchet man.

"I think in this day when school districts are becoming more susceptible to lawsuits a legal representative is necessary. He (Breen) takes all of our new policies and reviews them...in effect guiding the boards around pitfalls. The area of personal rights has really come to the forefront...people are becoming lawsuit-happy. As a result, school districts more-and-more are seeking permanent legal counsel," Newlin commented.

Asked if he would encourage the multi-program concept, such as being implemented at Walnut Grove School in Pleasanton, at all other Pleasanton schools, Newlin responded affirmatively.

"Each school community has varying kinds of needs but we should have enough flexibility within our schools to provide for these varying needs."

However, Newlin interjected the fact that physical structures tend to dictate the types of programs offered. "You can provide open education in a very traditional type of atmosphere. We could go to some modification of the Walnut Grove multi-program if the interest was indicated at any of the schools," the former Lancaster and Calixico administrator ventured.

On the Fundamental concept, Newlin commented that "Some people learn better in that type of atmosphere. Fundamentalists represent a valid philosophy. I certainly don't look at it as any type of fringe. It is somewhere along the continuum of what makes a good educational program."

Asked to describe his relationship now with teachers and administrators in the district, the UCLA graduate said he was "very impressed" with the quality of the staff, not only teachers, but classified personnel, main office and building-level administration and board members.

"The feedback I get is pretty positive. Their is an openness here. The boards ARE interested in kids," Newlin declared. As an example of the latter, he noted the concern shown by Karen Finn and other elementary board members on the serving of a particular brand of calorie-loaded cookies.

On the question of whether teaching vice-principal positions would be retained at the elementary level, Newlin said a decision had not been made as yet.

Pressed as to what was delaying such a critical staffing slot, Newlin said "We have some concern as to the Teaching VP definition. We'll have to define it with more precision before making a move."

With the exception of Vintage Hills and Walnut Grove, and to some extent with Kay Bolles at Fairlands, the remaining schools have TVP's who have a regular class and assist with administrative duties in addition.

Phyllis Clark is the top on-site administrator at Vintage Hills though listed as a teaching vice principal. The principal is John Bristow, who serves in the same capacity for nearby Valley View. Tom Ingham is the teaching vice principal at Walnut Grove.

In their salary and benefits proposal this past spring, the Amador Valley Teachers Association urged that the TVP position be abolished and the individuals reassigned to the classroom.

Asked his prime accomplishment since coming to the district from Lancaster 9 1/2 months ago, Newlin said the "opening up of communications with all people in the district. Teachers are more involved, they share in the design of the budget at the school level. There's more credibility."

The 40-year old Newlin came to Pleasanton from Lancaster where he was superintendent of a district somewhat smaller than the Amador-Pleasanton district.

Mayors' group balks on 'New Town' stand

PLEASANTON - After less than 30 minutes of discussion, the Alameda County Mayors Conference voted unanimously Wednesday night to table further consideration of the controversial Las Positas New Town issue.

Fred Cooper, chairman of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors, had asked the mayors to consider a resolution requesting its delegates to the Association of Bay Area Governments to vote to rescind ABAG's action regarding New Town later this summer.

A motion to pass that resolution, however, died for lack of a second.

Water instructor course offered by city rec

A Water Safety Instructor Retraining course will be offered Tuesdays, July 8, 22, 29 and August 5 from 7 - 10 p.m.

All WSI's must complete retraining by December 31, 1976 and may not teach the new lifesaving classes until their retraining is completed.

A current WSI card is the necessary pre-requisite, and a limited number of applicants will be accepted.

Registration will take place at the Aquatic Center, 4455 Black Ave. in Pleasanton. Monday - Friday, 1:30 - 7 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday, 1 - 6 p.m. The fee is $7.

Water Carnival set for Fourth

A Fourth of July Water Carnival will be held at the Valley Community Swim Center this Friday from 1 to 6 p.m., according to Jim Wise-carver of the Valley Community Services District.

Every hour on the hour, a special event will be held while the rest of the time will be devoted to free public swimming.

Some of the events include a greased watermelon tug-of-war, a goldfish hunt, a money dive and relay races.

The events are open to all and will start on the hour from 1 to 6 p.m.

Jack Maltester, chairman of the Mayors Conference, attempted somewhat successfully to prevent a full-blown debate on the Las Positas issue.

Cooper in arguing for his resolution, said he believed it important for the mayors to consider the precedent ABAG set when it said, in effect, "we don't trust the board of supervisors to do what it says it will do," Cooper said.

"It is important for regional agencies to understand that local agencies ought to have the right to make their own mistakes," he said. "I support the concept of ABAG looking at Las Positas but only after we have adopted a specific plan," he said.

Cooper warned that precedent setting action by ABAG may "come back to haunt all of you."

Livermore Mayor Archer Futch said he did not believe it would be proper for the Mayors Conference to recommend what its delegates to ABAG should do. He was supported in that view by Pleasanton Mayor Ed Kinney.

The Mayors Conference, which rotates its meetings among the 13 member cities, met last night at the Alameda County Fairgrounds with Pleasanton as its host.

Downtown redevelopment and 2 freeway links are city target

PLEASANTON - A comprehensive long-range plan to facilitate the continued redevelopment of downtown will be the subject of a public hearing Wednesday night.

That redevelopment plan, project report and Environmental Impact Report were drawn up by the staff following the establishment of the Pleasanton Redevelopment Agency in May of last year.

Following Wednesday's public hearing — the third in a series of meetings with property owners in the redevelopment area — the city council and PRA will adopt the plan, officially bringing it into existence.

The project area includes all of the central business district, the Youth Sports park and West Las Positas on both sides of Interstate 680 and extends north to pick up the site of the regional shopping center.

The redevelopment agency will fund public improvements in the project area through incremental increases in assessed valuation due to private improvements.

At a press conference Wednesday, PRA Deputy Executive Director John Bowling estimated if the approximately $8 million present assessed value in the project area increases 5 per cent (the average rate of increase for the city), the PRA could realize more than $100,000 when it begins collecting money in early 1977.

The redevelopment agency was established to aid the downtown area in surviving what could be the "devastating" impact of the regional shopping center, Bowling said.

The city is hoping that, by upgrading Main Street and the downtown, the area will become financially viable and will be able to withstand competition that the regional center will bring.

Among the public improvements planned for the project area are such things as street extensions and widening, installation of street furni-

VCSD says 600 sewer connections available

General Manager Paul Ryan told the Valley Community Services District Board of Directors Tuesday night that with the completion of repairs to the Hopyard sewer line, over 600 sewer connections will be available.

Actually, the connections are referred to as Dwelling Unit Equivalents (DUEs) since a bowling alley or restaurant will have to have more than one DUE to operate but would still only need one connection.

The Hopyard line, which brought sewage from Pleasanton to the VCSD plant, had been leaking and allowing very brackish water into the line. That water — which had 30,000 parts per million of total dissolved solids (TDS) — caused VCSD to come dangerously close to exceeding Regional Water Quality Control Board (RWQCB) limits for TDS.

So, the VCSD plant was forced to remain at 3.57 million gallons a day (mgd) of capacity, even though it could handle 5 mgd.

However, with the long delayed repairs of the Hopyard line now complete, the TDS content of the incoming sewage is much lower and VCSD officials are confident they can treat 4 mgd.

This opens up approximately 600 DUEs to hook up to the plant and VCSD will accept applications beginning July 11.

There is a priority system based on points allotted for development of property prior to the court settlement of 1972. Each DUE will cost $735.

VCSD will distribute 600 of the DUEs to Dublin and the Val Vista area but Pleasanton's 57 DUEs will not be distributed until July 14 at the earliest.

Pleasanton City Attorney Ken Scheidig indicated that the developers who are on the list are not in agreement over who has top priority for the 57 DUEs. Until that can be settled, Pleasanton will not advertise its connections.

Now that the salt content of the incoming sewage has been lowered, VCSD officials can apply to the RWQCB for expansion to 4.3 mgd, which is their estimate of how much sewage they can handle and still stay within environmental limits. That expansion, if approved by Executive Director Fred Dierker of RWQCB, would allow 1,071 more DUEs. Of that number, 429 would be for use in Pleasanton and the remainder would be used in the Dublin and Val Vista areas.

However, first the 600 DUEs must be filled, and a VCSD spokesman indicated that most will probably be snapped up.

VCSD also gave its estimate of needed capacity to the Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) so that LAVWMA can determine how much effluent it must plan to dispose of.

The staff estimates that 1.25 additional mgd will be required, for a total of 5.08 mgd north of the freeway.

Pleasanton's estimate is 12.2 mgd, which brings the total in the west end of the valley to 17.28 mgd.

The board also discussed the Congress of Valley Agencies (COVA) budget and the threat by Pleasanton to withdraw if the Stoneridge Shopping Center is discussed by COVA.

"It does seem to be a petty battle here," said Dick Fahey. "The members of the Pleasanton City Council feel threatened."

The board also sent the revised Joint Powers Agreement back to COVA to reword what VCSD felt was some unclear language.

This front yard storage of a recreational vehicle may not be possible in another five years under an amendment being studied for Livermore's proposed storage ordinance.

City may ban yard storage

LIVERMORE - The years may be numbered for those residents in certain neighborhoods who are allowed to park recreational vehicles in their front yards.

Under an amendment to the storage ordinance being hammered out by the planning commission, residents with houses that have limited access to rear yards could keep equipment in the front—but only for a specific time period.

Five years is the period being considered by the commission for the proposed phase-out program, or, in legal terms, the amortization.

The storage ordinance, which has been studied by the city but is as yet unadopted, covers the storage of vehicles, trailers and similar equipment including boats, aircraft and unmounted camper shells.

The commission sent the city council a draft of the ordinance in May that would have permitted storage in the front yards of those neighborhoods with no access to their back yards.

Council members suggested various revisions to the proposed ordinance as written. The most vehement objections were voiced by Don Miller, who noted that a 1973 ballot measure endorsed prohibiting front yard storage in all residential districts.

The amortization amendment to be studied by commissioners is being written partly in response to Miller's objections.

Right of way agent considered by city

LIVERMORE - The city council will consider retaining a right-of-way agent to handle its proposed half a million dollars worth of property acquisitions.

"We can't do it," City Manager Bill Parness flatly told the council during its budget session last week, noting that the city's staff simply is too small for the volume of acquisition work.

Parness asked the council to consider retaining an outside firm or individual to serve as a right-of-way agent for a specific term. He suggested one year.

The city manager emphasized to the council it has close to $500,000 for property acquisition and half would be there next year because of the tremendous amount of time it takes to acquire land.

Councilman Don Miller indicated he would support Parness' suggestion only if the agent's salary would come proportionately from those departments benefiting by the purchase, rather than being drawn from the park fund alone.

According to Parness, that condition can be met.

The council will consider the recommendation at its next budget study session July 19.

Low cost shot clinics opening

City vs. Long land suit is stalled

OAKLAND - There was no final verdict Tuesday in the suit Dr. Howard Long has filed against the City of Pleasanton over the city's refusal to accept the tentative tract map for the remaining 10 lots in Long's hillside subdivision.

Alameda County Superior Court Judge John Sparrow overruled the city's demurrer (which stated Long's attorney Gilbert Maines was not seeking redress through the proposed legal channels) but did not rule on the merits of the case.

Rather, Judge Sparrow ordered both City Attorney Ken Scheidig and Maines to file briefs by Monday arguing whether Long has "fundamental vested rights".

Maines has argued that since Long's Longview subdivision is included in an assessment district, he does have "vested rights".

The city's refusal to accept the tentative map for the final lots in Longview was based on the fact the required Environmental Impact Report was not completed and on the fact the private streets planned for the subdivision are in violation of city ordinances.

Corporate restaurants move in

Fifth in a series

The picture of Mom and Pop running their full-service, elegant dining establishment as an integral part of the social fabric of their community is dying, according to national marketing surveys conducted by the restaurant industry.

Just as the local grocery store all but caved in to the pressure of the chain supermarket in the post World War II rush to corporate bigness, so the one-store, family-owned operation will be replaced by the limited menu chain restaurants.

Ethnic restaurants — and "Continental Cuisine" is considered ethnic to American tastes — will survive, but only in the shadow of giants.

Profit paints the picture, and corporate giants have discovered a vein of only recently tapped gold.

Restaurant chains not part of diversified corporations are expanding nationally and internationally at an unprecedented rate. Some are built to a chain of a dozen or so operations and sold to corporations, while others maintain their own identity, offer stock and themselves become corporations.

Private, non-chain restaurants are reluctant to give out dollar figures, but assuming gross bar revenues of $10,000 per month — a conservative estimate when the operation includes lunch — will produce a yearly gross of approximately $400,000.

Labor costs are higher when "professional" help is hired, and wholesale costs are greater because of the smaller buying power. Overhead and capital investment, however, are considerably lower.

Construction costs for the contemporary steak and lobster house will run to more than $500,000 not including opening inventories, while the private entrepreneur usually will buy an existing restaurant for about $100,000, including supplies.

With but few exceptions only the corporations can afford to spend that half-million-plus-dollars for an opening. Rather than being frightened by the seemingly astronomical number, however, the giants are fighting for some of the action because they know the return on their capital is handsome and that the demand for limited-menu operations is growing in spite of the economic slump.

The recently launched Vintage House operation received initial financing from a European conglomerate. While the privately owned restaurateur usually is living a comfortable financial life and is a vibrant part of his community, the corporate dollars flow to and from the community in near anonymity.

And there are lots of anonymous dollars.

Victoria Station, headquartered in San Francisco, isn't the largest chain by any means — they are a corporation, but not part of a diversified conglomerate — but it's considered the best operation in the country.

Their 46 restaurants grossed $46.97 million dollars in the year ending March 31. One Texas store is reported to gross more than $2 million dollars per year.

They're ranked 95th in a recent survey of the 100 biggest operations published by the International Food Service Manufacturing Associates of Chicago.

First place goes to McDonald's at $2-plus billion. That's not a typographical error; that's "b" as in billion.

Saga Foods, Inc., owners of the Refectories, Velvet Turtle's, Stuart Anderson's Black Angus and Straw Hat Pizza Parlors, is ranked 41st with gross restaurant sales of some $70 million in 1974.

Saga also provides institutional food service, and its combined sales for 1975 are projected at $350 million. The Menlo Park-based chain netted $4.7 million dollars on its 1974 sales of $295.

Hungry Hunter, owned by the Ralston Purina Corporation, grosses an estimated $36 million per year in its 36 restaurants. In addition to the Hunter, it operates Mountain Jacks, Barkley Jacks, Monterey Jacks, the Boar's Head, Stag and Hound, the Boat House and Tortilla Flats.

Host International, which operates airport food services, also owns Charlie Brown's, a $19.8 million chain.

With the notable exception of Victoria Station, which started with its San Francisco store in 1969 and grew to 46 operations including Quinn's Lighthouse, Thomas Lord's, the Plantation Gardens and The Royal Exchange, the limited-menu restaurant theory is to stay in the suburbs.

According to a spokesman for one major chain, suburban sites are picked for their proximity to office buildings (the lunch crowd) surrounded by a middle to upper class residential community that's prone to dine out after a hard day at the office.

Saga Foods recently sold both its San Francisco and Oakland Refectories.

Not all operations are non union, although the prevalent philosophy is to stay with young, transient or collegiate help.

"We feel we can represent our employees best," a representative said, "and keep open the lines of communication much better than a union."

In some areas they are butted into unionization, "but that depends on the community and the pressure the union can bring," he added.

Competition for the family-owned, service oriented restaurant is stiff, to say the least, and their fate sealed, according to industry marketing experts.

LaRock - Wolff

The Presbyterian Community Church of Pleasanton was the setting for the marriage of Pamela LaRock of Dublin to Darrell Wolff of Pleasanton with the Rev. Sam Roberson.

The bride was accompanied by Lauren Ratto, maid of honor, and bridesmaids George Anne Komula, Lori Smith, Connie Takata and Sheri Snyder. Best man was Rich Wolff, the groom's brother, with ushers Dave Coffman, Mike Smith, Harry White and Joe Rose. Altar boys were Brian and John Snyder.

Following a reception at the Veterans Memorial Building in Pleasanton the couple honeymooned on the Monterey Peninsula. The new Mr. and Mrs. Roberson have made their first home at 4267 Pleasanton Ave., Pleasanton.

Pam is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell A. LaRock of Dublin, and a 1973 graduate of Dublin High School. Darrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wolff of Pleasanton and a 1971 graduate of Amador Valley High School, is attending the College of Alameda and is employed with Consolidated Freight Ways in Hayward.

MR. AND MRS. JACK MONTGOMERY

TEXTILE EXTRAVAGANZA

Exquisite blue-ribbon pillow in needlepoint by Lillian Claypool of Pleasanton is a 'jewel' in a showcase of textile 'gems.'

The lure of the coveted blue ribbon and stiff competition make recognition at the Alameda County Fair a special honor.

Six Valley artists claimed that honor in the Fair's fine arts section in an exhibit whose standards are the highest in a decade, according to the fine arts department head. A blue ribbon was awarded to Karen Desper of Pleasanton for her watercolor portrait (at right), and third award was given to Edna Tunison of Livermore for the graphic "Meditation." Honorable mention was earned by Marilyn Calhoun, and Pat Kelley of Livermore and Terri Bunce of Pleasanton.

The number of photography entries and the variety of subjects caught by the camera far exceed those of previous years, says a Fair spokesman. Local photographers who claim recognition include Lynn Kelly of Livermore who took a first place for her color print (bottom, left), and David Profit of Livermore who received a third place award in the professional division for the color print "Livermore Valley in Summer." Honorable mention was given to two prints by Kenneth Way of Livermore, and a print by Myron Hensinkveld of Livermore.

Valley homemakers were well-represented among prize-winning entries in the home arts section. Linda Allard of Pleasanton took top honors with awards for a dress judged "Best of Fair Knit," a sweater judged "Best of Knitted Sweater," and third place for clothing.

Other home arts winners were Dorothy Jenkins of Livermore with a first in clothing, Sharon Stretz of Pleasanton with a first in jams and jellies, Shirley Cunningham and Charolette Morris of Pleasanton for two "Best Antique Doll" entries, Jane Armstrong of Livermore whose textile earned the "Best of Show" title, and Julie Waldron of Pleasanton with a special award for junior division painting. Second place awards were given to fruit canned by Judith Weisberg of Pleasanton, and pickles by Marlene Sandberg of Pleasanton.

Three Valley art groups will be featured in the "Art-in-Action" attraction at the Fair. Livermore Art Association members Edna Tunison, Marilyn Calhoun, Muriel Doggett and Margo Kirkegaard will demonstrate throughout Monday, July 7.

Pleasanton Day, Wednesday, July 9 will be highlighted by art demonstrations by Warren Wade, Phyllis Wentworth, Mary Toman, Barbara VanSlyke, Billie Schmer and Helen Allin of the Pleasanton Art League.

The Valley Artists will be featured during Dublin Day, Friday, July 11 with members Pat Smith, Dorothy and John Harder, Kathy Jahn, Mary Langham and Lois Ward.

A 'FIRST' FOR THE VALLEY

Watercolor portrait entitled 'Abandoned' by Pleasanton's Karen Desper was the single blue-ribbon winner by a local artist in the fine arts section.

'PORTALS' BY LYNN KELLY OF LIVERMORE.

MOMENT OF TRUTH IS THE TASTE TEST

Shirley Mitchell and Evangeline Jones discover the advantage in being a home arts judge as they sample canned peaches. Final judging in the home arts section for baked goods is Saturday at noon.

'SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO'

Oil painting by Makiko Marshall of Livermore earned the Alameda County Board of Directors purchase award. It will hang in the board room at the fairgrounds.

It will be well worth your time to make a reservation to see "HAY FEVER" the Civic Arts Repertory production now playing weekends in Walnut Creek.

If this bold statement confounds a few who might be aware of the history of Noel Coward's first comedy, let me hastily add that time has been very kind to it. What was an incomprehensible disaster in the twenties, is now a very funny piece and it is played in very high style by some exceedingly talented non-professionals.

There was a bit of a shock during the first fifteen minutes when a very tense Kim Gayton as Sorel Bliss delivered her lines with such machine gun rapidity it was impossible to make any sense of them. Talk about opening night nerves — Kim had that first audience on edge and Mark Geiger as Simon Bliss didn't help matters by picking up her rattatata tempo. Both of them settled down, however, and were a joy to watch the rest of the evening.

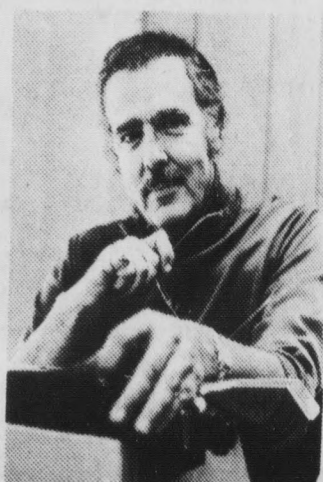

Marcia Radley, Judith Bliss, plays with a full appreciation of her very colorful role. We were particularly taken with her timing which even on opening night was precise and almost flawless.

Clara, the maid, was given the full treatment by Mary Gerber. Slovenly English maids with sharp tongues are a dime-a-dozen in theatrical literature. You come, after a time, to know exactly how they will act and what they will say. Mary Gerber wasn't an original, but she was certainly a breath of pratfall reality in the stilted artificiality of the other characters as created by Mr. Coward.

Marion Russon, as David Bliss, came on like a sneaky gang-busters with just the proper amount of mumbling and bumbling that turns into some very fancy pyrotechnics by last curtain. Without demeaning them in the least, I'll have to lump Charles Elliott, Steen Williams, James Stophel and Edie Finsilver as the unwelcome, unwanted, insulted and put upon guests together. They were all fine — handling their assignments with a lot of style. Those poor characters go through more torment and embarrassment than they deserve and all four of them (the actors) managed the awful pauses and idiotic actions with monumental control. All this, I must point out, is not the doing of Mr. Noel Coward. Director Michael Leibert, who took time from a busy schedule at the well-known Berkeley Rep, handles this guest assignment with a fine hand and firm control.

There were a couple of interpolations that added immensely to the evening. The principal one was taking advantage of the musical talent of Mark Geiger and turning Simon Bliss into a musician instead of a painter. Geiger's rendition of 'Don't Put Your Daughter On The Stage, Mrs. Worthington' was a 'fun' bit beautifully staged and like Clara, a momentary relief from the artificial rhythms of Noel's brittle dialogue.

Coward had a penchant for putting a country house breakfast scene in most of his plays. Eating, on stage, is a minor acting triumph when it is well done. This cast had every mouthful down to a priceless tee. I toss a special small bouquet to Charles Elliott for the fleeting moment alone at the table when he mutely calls upon all the powers of heaven to rescue him from that hideous house.

Well, hideous only in the sense of the characters it houses. The setting, created by Richard C. Patek, was simply fine in every respect and I'll wind it all up by mentioning it was all very properly lit by Robert Dietle and that the costumes by John C. Gilkerson were colorful and on the whole most appropriate.

At this point you must have realized that I'm recommending HAY FEVER as part of your Summer entertainment schedule. It isn't often a non-English cast can bring such a joyful flavor to a thoroughly British comedy. There were no obvious compromises. It was all a lot of fun.

Opening lead — K ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

There is nothing to the play of today's hand. The defense takes the first trick, declarer the next 12.

There is a lot to the bidding. North only holds 11 high-card points, but his strong six-card suit gives him a sound opening bid. South's one-heart response is normal and North elects to rebid two diamonds rather than give an immediate raise with just three trumps.

South's three-club bid is what is sometimes called a "True reverse". The bid shuts out a return to two hearts and by definition is a reverse bid even though the hearts and clubs have been bid in order of rank. It is also a game-forcing bid.

North's jump to four hearts is a very good bid indeed. It shows three good hearts. With four hearts he would have raised hearts right away. It also says: "Partner, you have forced to game. I like hearts and if you want to go on to a slam it is up to you. I have told my all."

South does want to go on. He had intended to raise diamonds, but now there is no reason to go to the minor suit and he Blackwoods to the slam.

"What bothers me is that this fun-filled summer will be followed by a debt-filled fall, winter and spring!"

Corbett, Blair lead with 72's

The son of a former Castlewood Country Club professional is flirting with a bit of local golf history today in the windup to the 36-hole San Ramon Junior Tournament at San Ramon National Country Club.

Young Bill Corbett can achieve unique distinction after firing an even-par 72 yesterday to tie Bob Blair for the tournament top spot.

Corbett, 15, could become the first person ever to win this event, while at the same time being unable to qualify for a California driver's license.

It sounds crazy. But it is a feat of merit.

All previous winners in the San Ramon Junior's history have come from the 16-17 year old ranks, the senior bracket in the Northern California Junior Golf Association. But young Bill, who needs a ride when he goes to the course, could change all of that.

His drives and putts were accurate enough yesterday to produce a round of startling uniformity. There were no ruffles or flourishes as you'd expect from a precocious golfer.

Corbett, son of former Castlewood, and now Meadow Club golf pro Bill Corbett, bogged one hole on the front nine at San Ramon yesterday, and birdied one. He strung together nine straight pars on the back.

His 72 was good for a first place tie with Blair of Santa Rosa, who played like a junior golfer should. He scored a birdie, then an eagle on consecutive holes after the turn, and balanced that with three bogies.

The pair are three strokes in front of Jeff Baker, in at three-over 75.

Jim Kane and Kris Baxter are tied at 76, followed by another 15-year old, Ed Luethe, Jim Tufts, Devin Burns and Paul Leonard at 77.

Five people are bunched at six-over 78, and eight more at 79. The latter group includes Pleasanton's Harold Zosel, and Chris Cantalini of Dublin.

Cantalini, whose home course is San Ramon, was in contention until he dropped three strokes to par on the eighth and ninth holes.

"I had it cooking pretty good until then," Cantalini said. He suffered an out-of-bounds on the par-five eighth hole and wound up with a bogey. Poor chipping cost him a double bogey on the par-four ninth.

"After that I started jumping on the ball and I hit it pretty good," Chris said.

"Then I went out to the driving range and I was doing pretty good. I think I was just trying to steer the ball too much. If I can shoot around par tomorrow, I'll be up there."

It will be a tough comeback if Blair continues to weave his magic around the greens. The co-leader chipped in for a birdie on the par-three 14th hole yesterday, then holed another chip on 15 for an eagle-three.

Cantalini, meanwhile, was falling from view because of his short game. "I was animating my chips," he said. "I'm going to stay out here till 7 to practice on it."

Corbett, obviously, holds the lead in the 14-15 age group with his 72 after one round.

In the 12-13 bracket, Alfredo Estimo shot a 10-over par 82 for two-shot cushion over Tony Hazarian and Ronnie Marks.

Joey Penafior's 49 for nine holes topped the 10 and 11-year olds boys.

Debbie Hall fired an outstanding 83, 11-over, to pace the girls' 14-17 class. Shelley Flanagan, Mary McConologue and Karen Whitten, the other players in the division, are tied at 95.

Terri Preciado fired a 46 yesterday for first place in the girls' 13-under bracket. Judy Hoffman of Livermore, and Elena Penafior are tied for second at 53.

Mary Bacon rides at Fairgrounds today

Mary Bacon, who has singlehandedly kept alive the controversial image of female jockeys, will make her California debut in the ninth race at the Alameda County Fair this afternoon.

Bacon will ride Windy's Luck, owned by Mrs. Harry Curland, in a field of 10 three-year old fillies over a six furlong course.

Windy's Luck, racing out of the number one post position, won her last start at Vallejo by five lengths. Despite carrying a weight of 120 pounds, the daughter of Lucky Mel should be a factor in the race along with Lucky Lil and Infuriating.

Infuriating will be ridden by Juan Gonzalez, who yesterday continued his winning streak and broke into double figures for victories on the fair circuit.

The 27-year old Bacon began her riding career in 1969 and since then has become at least equally famous for her off-track exploits as for her abilities as a pilot.

She appeared nude in Playboy magazine and was featured on the cover of Newsweek, as well as in Sport.

Earlier this year Bacon added to her image by announcing that she was a member of the Ku Klux Klan. Although the announcement caused her to lose endorsement contracts, she defended the Klan as a traditional American organization.

Two recent race-related incidents involving Bacon were also controversial.

Recently, she charged that doping of horses was a fact of racing life in Louisiana. However, when pressed by investigators, the blonde jockey dropped out of sight and was fined $250 for making unsubstantiated charges.

And, at Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha, where she was one of the leading riders in the just-concluded meeting, Bacon was fined by stewards for stripping her silks in front of the grandstand after a losing effort.

Of late, Bacon has been galloping horses for Bobby Frankel, the leading trainer at Hollywood Park.

In yesterday's feature race, Bux Alibi picked up his second straight win since being claimed for $12,000 by Louis Decker at Golden Gate Fields earlier this spring.

The four-year old son of Honey's Alibi closed fast to catch George Galea and Kearscraft and hold off a challenge by First Ticket and Tommy Burkes.

First Ticket was a 3-5 favorite in the betting, but Burkes was unable to boot it any closer than a head back at the wire.

In today's mile and 70 yard, $8000, feature chase, the favored trio of Tracy Nono, to be ridden by Raul Caballero, Brenda's Intent, with Pleasanton's Mel Lewis up, and Lady Be Ready, with Randy Schacht, lead a field of eight.

Nevada Lark, coupled for betting purposes with Chilean Cu Cu 2nd, cannot be counted out, if only because the amazing Gonzalez will be aboard.

In other Fair news, 12 horses have been nominated for the 14th running of the $10,000 added Sam Whiting Memorial Handicap Saturday.

Made eligible for the mile and 1/16 event was the Jawl brothers' Star of Kuwait who captured the Berkeley Handicap and the Sacramento Handicap at Golden Gate Fields, both worth $25,000. Other potential starters are: Saratoga Lane, Indigo 2nd, Rio Claro, Quite a Day, Bold Clarion, Pelegrin Sands, Grande Chateau, Win Desmond, Champs Champ, Ocala Boy and Carlos Villa.

Phils and Orioles will meet tonight

The Pleasanton National Phillies came from a 5-1 deficit to overtake Centerville National for a 6-5 victory last night, setting up a showdown with the Dublin Valley Orioles in District 57's senior league Tournament of Champions. An excellent long relief job by pitcher Dave Konecny preserved the Phils' win. Konecny came on in the second inning, and shut out Centerville the rest of the way, striking out six, walking three, and choking a Centerville rally in the sixth with a fine overhead catch.

Centerville scored four runs in the first inning and one in the second to lead, 5-1, after a frame and a half.

But two walks by Centerville hurler Robert Costa got the Phils moving, and Konecny drove home Pleasanton's second run with a single.

Glen Hill followed with a double to drive in two more, and the Phils tied it when Mark Church was hit by a pitch, forcing in the fourth run of the inning.

In the fourth, the Phils scored the deciding run when Hill reached on an error by the shortstop, advanced on a throwing error by the catcher, and came home on a single by Dave Negron.

The Dublin Valley Orioles sent 13 batters to the plate in the second inning, scored eight runs, and coasted to an 8-3 victory over the Mission San Jose Orioles.

Arthur Bayless, DV's 13-year-old centerfielder who later turned in two outstanding catches to open the sixth inning, led off the Orioles' big second with a base on balls. MSJ hurler Mark Urey then issued another free pass to Jeff Jennings before striking out Scott Smith and Mark Jennings in succession.

Dublin Valley's Phil Figone walked, loading the bases. Mike Barrow then sent a ball to right field which eluded the MSJ fielder, allowing Bayless and Jennings to score.

Figone scored when pitcher Mark Fahey singled. That moved Barrow to third, and he scored when Tom Woodmansee followed with another single.

On the ensuing play, Fahey and Woodmansee came home as the MSJ shortstop mis-handled Jeff Silva's ground ball and the first baseman erred as well.

Bayless returned to the plate and drew another walk, putting runners at first and second. Jeff Jennings singled, scoring Silva. Bayless scored the final run of the inning on a single by Smith.

Dons out-point CP in cage

Amador Valley High and College Park faced up the gloves Tuesday in summer league basketball, and the Dons staggered off with a unanimous decision. They also won the basketball contest, 58-44.

The game was interrupted by 42 fouls in 28 minutes. Two technical fouls were assessed, and twice, brawls nearly erupted. The Falcons played without their best player, Doug True, sidelined by a broken finger. He could have jabbed with the other hand, though.

The Dons were paced by guard Mike Hill with 18 points. Rob Yackley had 11 points and Steve Mohatt, 10. Greg Tubbs topped College Park with 13.

Dublin won its first game of the season, a 51-36 pasting of California.

Jerry Puertas and Kory Porter shared scoring honors for the Gaels with 10 points each. Rich Barnes scored nine, and Ed LaPerle, seven.

Cal's Rick Lackley scored nine, and Craig Madden, eight.

Albany defeated San Ramon, 68-59, but not until weathering a Wolf comeback in the second half. The Cougars led at halftime by 12 points, but San Ramon shaved that to six with two minutes left in the game.

Baswell stops the Station

Jim Baswell of Codioli Ford was reached for two runs in the top of the seventh inning Tuesday, but escaped further damage with the tying run at the plate, insuring a 10-8 Livermore Slow Pitch Softball win over Livermore Station.

Fred Cariss slammed a three-run homer for the winners in the top of the first inning.

Cariss slapped three consecutive singles after that, and wound up with four runs-batted-in. Teammate Arnold Moss had two doubles and a single and drove in three runs. Dennis Murphy, who was 3-for-4, had a pair of RBIs.

The Station scored three runs in the top of the first inning on RBI singles by Ray Borges and Don Acamo, and Bob Cantrell's double.

Nazarene Church scored six times in the top of the seventh inning in other action to stun Kavanagh Liquors, 8-3. A double by Jerry Corbet and Vern England's single drove in four of the runs. Nazarene had been held to two fourth inning runs and six hits until the big finish.

Tom Favero's double in the fourth inning knocked in a pair of runs to give Kavanagh a temporary, 3-2 lead.

Blair Food pinned a 10-5 loss on Livermore-Dublin Disposal, thanks to the hitting of Mike Sorni. He homered and singled to drive in four runs. Glen Saxton fetched two runs with a first inning single.

Dragons win, 10-3

Industrial Office Supply of Dublin thumped Niles-Centerville, 10-3 in the opening round of post-season minor league baseball play.

Chris Frates pitched the entire game for the Dragons, and led Niles to five hits. He struck out nine.

Mike Gibbons had three hits for the winners, including a double. Todd Thorson and Jim Gibbons each singled twice.

In other action, the Dublin Shamrocks scored 13 times in the top of the sixth inning to overtake Livermore American, 18-11. Relief pitcher Scott Moulton came on in the fifth inning to replace starter Eric Phaneuf and pick up the victory. Moulton and Phil Heinz each lashed three hits for the Shamrocks. Ken Conroy had two hits. Catcher Jerry Weaver played well.

Dan Dremalas keyed a four-run fourth inning for Livermore Locker as the Mets tripped the Mission-Irvington Supply Yankees, 4-3.

Dremalas cracked a two-run double to score the first two runs of the game. Winning pitcher Mike Lynn opened the big inning with a double, and moved up on Sig Cicisery's infield single.

Dremalas chased home both runners, moved around to score on John Mullany's double, then Mullany scored on a single by John Rourke.

Lynn gave up seven hits, all singles, and stiffened in the clutch to strand 13 Yankees on the bases.

Williams drops two in Italy track

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Jamaican sprinter Don Quarrie beat American star Steve Williams twice Wednesday night to highlight an international track and field meet.

Quarrie won the 200 meters in 20.1 seconds and the 100 meters in 10 flat. Williams clocked the same times, but Quarrie was clearly the winner in both races.

The 100 meters was a thriller, with Pietro Mennea of Italy third and Steve Riddick of the United States fourth. Both were timed in 10.1.

Marty Liquori of the U.S. won a slow 1,500 meter race in 3:41.8, outpacing Petre Lupan of Romania with a strong kick on the final stretch. Lupan was clocked in 3:42.3.

Nina Holmer of Finland, the European champion, took the women's 1,500 meters in 4:08.3, beating Italy's Gabriella Dorio, whose 4:09.1 was a world record for junior athletes. Francie Larrieu of the United States was third in 4:12.8.

Another American, Charles Foster, won the 110-meter hurdles in 13.7 seconds, edging West German Dieter Gerbrad, timed in 13.8. And American Rick Wohlhuiter took the men's 800 meters in 1:48.3. Nicolai Onescu of Romania was second in 1:48.4.

Jos Hermens of The Netherlands won the men's 5,000 meters in 13:36.4, beating American Frank Shorter, who clocked 13:37.8.

All you got to do is ask

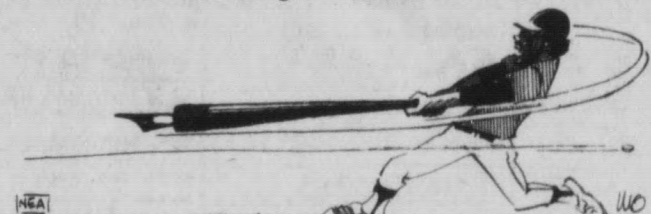

Jackson's pill-popping out of context?

By Murray Olderman

The tipoff:

Merlin Olsen, getting ready to play his 14th season of professional football, says Ray Malavasi, who skipped from the Oakland Raiders to the Los Angeles Rams a couple of years ago (over Raider protests for raiding), is the best defensive coach the all-pro tackle has even played for.

Q. Are you still mad at Reggie Jackson over last year's (World Series) incident? — W. Egli, Walnut Creek, Calif.

No. I think he is a moody, sometimes troubled man who's on an emotional yo-yo. I am a little amused by the current furor over his pill-popping revelations. Reggie said he was quoted out of context by his co-author. The author now says he went overboard on the quotes. It is my experience when a writer collaborates with an athlete, the written result is okayed by the athlete's signature. Reggie either said it the way it first appeared or he didn't bother to read the manuscript before signing.

Q. Is Mo Moorman going back to play for the Kansas City Chiefs this year now that Hank Stram has been replaced as coach? — J.R., Kansas City, Kan.

No. The fine offensive guard, who stayed out of the game last year, couldn't be persuaded to return by new coach Paul Wiggins. Mo has a very bad knee which makes him a physical risk, he is settled into a new life in Louisville and, maybe most important, his wife doesn't want him to come back. Mo is also the cousin of third round Open leader Frank Beard.

Q. Is golfer Tom Weiskopf a West Pointer? And if so, when was he there? — W.S.G., Princeton, Ind.

I think you've got Weiskopf confused with Bert Yancey, who went to the Military Academy in the mid-1950s but didn't follow through on an army career because he had some emotional problems. Weiskopf went to Ohio State and, in fact, was Jack Nicklaus' caddy there when the Golden Bear was a senior.

Q. Is it true that Claudell Washington didn't play baseball while in high school? And didn't have much experience before he turned pro? — J.M., El Cerrito, Calif.

Absolutely true. The 21-year-old sensation from nearby Berkeley was a track star instead. But he learned as fast as he ran because he jumped to the majors last year from Double A ball. And it should give you an idea how he rates by the move of Joe Rudi, maybe the best leftfielder in baseball, to first base so that Claudell could have a regular spot in the lineup this year.

Q. Could you tell according to the records how many home runs "Unser Choe" — Joe Hauser — hit during his lifetime career in baseball and what his top season with the Baltimore Orioles in the International League? — L.H., Elizabeth, N.J.

Hauser hit 399 home runs during a long minor league career which extended from 1918 through 1942, broken up by several years in the majors and one retirement period of three seasons. He also hit 79 homers in the big leagues for a grand total of 478. His high with Baltimore was 63 in 1930.

Q. Is Ernie Green, the former running mate of Jim Brown in the Cleveland backfield, still prominent as an educator? I heard he was with a university in the Cleveland area. — L.M., Lorain, O.

Even before he left the Cleveland Browns after the 1968 season, Ernie had joined the faculty at Western Reserve University and eventually became the provost of the school (equal to the dean of students). But he left last year to join Mark McCormack's International Management Group, biggest agency for pro athletes (Arnold Palmer, et al). Ernie's bag is team sports promotion, and I saw him recently organizing winter wrestling competition among pro football players in Las Vegas.

Parting shot:

The hit-and-run play in baseball, meaning a baserunner takes off and the batter tries to hit behind him, is a crass misnomer. It should be called, accurately, the run-and-hit because the man on base makes his move before the ball ever reaches the batter.

The approval of this amendment to P.U.D. 73-2 is based on staff reports to City Council dated April 22, 1975, and is subject to compliance by property owner with the following conditions:

1. That the revision be exactly as shown on the site plan and elevations, Exhibit A, with the exception that the second story be set back 10 feet from the western lot of the shopping center, and that approval of this revision in no way be construed to indicate approval of any other revision to the final approved plan for PUD 73-2.

3. That approval of this revision is subject to the approval of UP-74-22 by the City.

4. That the developer be reminded that sanitary sewer service is not available to service the second floor addition and that he must apply for and be granted a holding tank to accommodate this expansion before construction can begin.

Sheriff's blast on jails gets response

Supervisor Tom Bates, in an effort "to set the record straight", has responded to Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins' letter attacking critics of new jails.

Although Houchins did not actually name Bates in the letter, he did later admit he was referring to Bates when he wrote "It would appear his solution to the problem would be to . . . allow murderers, robbers, rapists, burglars and drug addicts to prey on the taxpayer while awaiting trial".

Bates and Supervisor Charles Santana have been opposed to the construction of $45 million pre-trial detention centers that Bates claims will cost $3 million per year to operate.

Bates would rather see extension of supervised release programs, a speedup of the court process and reform of the bail system.

"We must remember that we are talking only about pre-trial detention facilities," said Bates in his open letter to the citizens of Alameda County. "Our legal system presumes a person's innocence until he is proven guilty. It sounds like the Sheriff wants to punish people before they're proven guilty and is prepared to spend millions of dollars to lock up someone guilty of no more than an unpaid parking ticket and accused of nothing more serious than an illegal righthand turn."

Bates says that less than 5 per cent of the sheriff's bookings account for over 45 per cent of the detention days while 75 per cent of the bookings account for only 10 per cent of the detention days.

"I do believe that there is a need to replace the outmoded facilities at Santa Rita. However, I do not believe that it should cost us $100 million (the price of the two centers plus operational costs over 10 years) to do so," said Bates.

"With that same $100 million we could build the necessary jail space," Bates continued, "do something about the social ills that generate crime and still have something left over to give back to the taxpayers."

Houchins concluded his letter by listing various attitudes and facts that make him "sick", including "public officials who are not facing their responsibilities."

He was also sick of "citizens not helping themselves and facing their responsibilities." Bates responded "If he (Houchins) is that sick, perhaps he shouldn't be in office. If you want citizens to respect the law, then maybe lawmen should show more respect for the citizens," he concluded.

Allen raps BART board - wants night service

BART Director Robert Allen of Livermore has charged four of his fellow directors with a "gross violation" of the public trust by meeting in a secret caucus prior to last week's budget hearing.

Allen claimed Board President Richard Clark, Vice President Elmer Cooper, and Administrative Committee members Ella Hutch and Harvey Glasser met "in secret to deliberate on BART's 1975-76 budget."

At last Thursday's hearing, the BART board approved a $64.5 million budget for the year, some $6.5 million less than had originally been proposed.

Allen charged the 17 resolutions proposed by Cooper were arrived at in that caucus and "when some directors not in the secret caucus tried to get staff response to some of the resolutions, Clark ruled against us."

Allen added, "We had no chance to explore their content or possible effects on BART. We were barred from getting any response by staff or public."

The Livermore director, who opposed all 17 resolutions, said, "A public body should deliberate as well as decide issues in public. Elected officials who caucus — as did these four elected BART directors — so as to thwart this goal of public deliberation are in gross violation of the trust imposed in them, if not of the law itself."

When contacted by The Times, Board President Clark defended his actions, saying there was "no violation of the law." He added he believed Allen made his charges to "hide the fact that he is voting fiscally irresponsibly."

Most of the 17 resolutions dealt with reductions in the proposed budget.

Geldermann sees 'Two Phase' development for New Town

New Town developer Harlan Geldermann has unveiled a new time schedule for the proposed Las Positas community which will delay the final approval of plans for the controversial development.

Geldermann received approval from the Alameda County Board of Supervisors for the proposed 40,000 person community on the condition that he develop a specific plan to deal with such anticipated problems as air pollution, sewage treatment, low income housing, traffic, schools and so on.

Originally Geldermann was planning to present the whole specific plan at one time, but now has decided to make the planning a two phase operation.

The first phase would be a fundamental specific plan that will evaluate the development in cooperation and consultation with the various county and district agencies.

Then, the overall specific plan will be finalized in a second phase, according to Geldermann.

"This change in our approach will result in a longer time frame for final acceptance of the Las Positas specific plan. However, we feel it is a much more practical approach since so many minor, but important, decisions derive from the manner in which the major decisions are finalized," Geldermann said.

The problems dealt with in the first phase will include water, sewage disposal and the formation of a Las Positas Services' District similar to the Valley Community Services District.

Murray teachers irate over new exec hiring

Despite pleas from teachers who are unhappy with the budget in the Murray Elementary School District, the MESD board decided to authorize the hiring of an assistant superintendent to replace departing Associate Superintendent Bill Crozier.

However, the new post will have lesser responsibilities and thus a lower salary, so the district will save between $2,500 and $3,000, according to Superintendent Donald Williams.

The deadline for applications will be July 31 and the new person will be hired "as soon thereafter as possible", although district officials anticipate a great number of applicants and a lengthy screening process.

Heinz Gewing, the principal at Cronin School, will take Crozier's place as head of the negotiating team with the Certificated Employees' Council (CEC). Gewing has been on the district negotiating team for the past two years.

No further negotiations are scheduled at this time, as the talks have bogged down after the teachers called for a fact-finding committee.
